One of them, the largest grocery establishment in town, advertised whole haddock at 6 cents a pound, and the same fish, dressed, at 4 cents. Plounders, or sole, were offered at 1 cent undressed, 4 cents dressed, and 5 cents dressed.

If Gas Company Is Overcharging, Write to the American

So many glaring inconsistencies in the prices charged for gas in Greater Boston have come to the notice of the American, that this newspaper invites its readers to write to this office if they believe they have been subjected to unjust charges by local gas companies.

These letters should not be merely complaints. They should be accompanied by monthly statements from the company to back up the writers' charges.

GILCHRIST'S

SEEKS $30,000 FOR LOSS OF WIFE'S LOVE

Maurice J. Bresnahan of Medway Sues Paul R. Hodges in Alienation Case

Maurice J. Bresnahan of Medway has commenced suit at Dedham for $30,000 against Paul R. Hodges of Medway, for alienating the affections of his wife, Helen M. Bresnahan.

The couple have been married five years, and have one child, who is living with the plaintiff. For several years the plaintiff was a traveling man, working part of the time for the defendant. His work brought him through the Middle West, and obliged him to be away for many months at a time.

During that time, it is alleged, the defendant, who had a wife and three children living at the time, commenced to extend his acquaintance with the plaintiff's wife, taking long automobile trips, going to dances and places of entertainment.

The plaintiff claims that his wife was the recipient, not only of marked attention from the defendant, but of many presents. At one time, during the latter part of January of this year, the plaintiff claims to have traced the couple to Springfield and other places, where they remained together until their return to Boston.

The defendant is now thirty years of age and makes his home with his parents in Medway, his wife having died a few months ago. He is the son of a hardware dealer at No. 45 High street, where he is a manufacturer's agent, selling factory equipment. The plaintiff is an accountant, employed by one of the local railroads.

Mrs. Bresnahan has taken apartments at No. 12 Concord square and is spending part of her time operating an elevator in one of the fashionable hotels.

FORCED TO WALK STREETS TO KEEP FROM FREEZING

SLAYER LORD OF NASHUA GIVEN LIFE TERM

Tells Court He Killed Wife When Arraigned Before Hillsboro County Tribunal

Nashua, N. H., March 4.—Wilfred H. Lord, confessed wife murderer, was sentenced to life imprisonment at a special session of the Hillsboro County Superior Criminal Court.

Lord, under indictment by the grand jury for murder in the first degree in connection with the shooting and killing of his wife at their home here on December 15 last, withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty.

The plea was an agreement between Attorney-General Oscar L. Ames and J. J. Doyle of Nashua, counsel for Lord.

It closes up a case which kept the

New Hampshire authorities busy for many weeks and caused private detectives to search for the fugitive all the way from Canada to Florida.

Attorney-General Young stated that a center would have been hopeless, as the State was in possession of a letter written by Lord and sent to the State which was in effect a confession.

The State had also the two cartridges which were found lodged in the body of the young wife on December 15 and the gun from which they were fired.

The body of Mrs. Tatro Lord was found in her apartment by neighbors attracted by blood which was trickling down the doorstep. Her husband was seen shortly before reaching for a railroad train. After the search in which the Pinkertons took the leading part, he was arrested in New York, N. Y., two months to a day from the date of the commission of the crime.

PLAN FOR SALVATION ARMY DRIVE IN MAY

Colonel Clifford, commander of the New England Salvation Army, and representatives of the organization from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Connecticut effected a preliminary arrangement for the Salvation Army Home Service campaign drive which will take place from May 18 to 26.

No Medicine—Chest Without Its Family Laxative

From the baby to the grandparent a good laxative is the necessary medicine in the little life. It works off serious sickness and saves doctor's bills. Many a cold has been prevented from running late gripe and pneumonia by the timely use.

Many a racking headache has been quickly dispelled by it. And it is a laxative rather than a drastic cathartic or purgative that should be in every family medicine-chest, for a laxative can be used at all ages.

Thousands of good American families have for more than a quarter century used a combination of simple laxative herbs with peppermint known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a laxative—tonic that acts on the bowels and stomach. Infants take it with perfect safety, and it is equally effective for grownups.

Grandparents are now seeing their children give it to their babies. It is excellent for all the family in constipation no matter how chronic, indigestion, wind colic, biliousness, headaches, dyspepsia and similar ills.

The drugist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.

REPUBLICANS FRAMING HIGH TARIFF BILL

Preparing for Special Session of Congress, Which They Think Will Be June 1

By International News Service.

Washington, March 6.—Confident that President Wilson will be compelled by the impending chaotic order of things to convene a special session of the sixty-sixth Congress, probably for June 1, House Republicans entered upon their reorganization work today determined to be able to announce tonight the proposal of their legislative staff in the next Congress.

The completion of the important committees has already been determined, tentatively, at least, it was announced. It is also announced that the whip of the next house—Representative Frank L. Green of Vermont—is mentioned as the most promising candidate—will be selected today.

LEADERSHIP IN DOUBT.

Although the Mann votes, which, it is said, are pledged to Representative J. Hamilton Moore of Pennsylvania for the leadership of the new House, outnumber the Gilliam votes, which are said to be supporting Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, the outcome is doubtful. For this reason the Committee on Commerce has tentatively left this until the last and may before the Congress meets in session. One thing regarded as certain as a result of the Committee on Commerce action is that Representative Purdy of Michigan will be the sponsor of a high protective tariff bill—probably higher than usual because of the need for revenue to carry out war bills of the government. Further will in all probability be the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which is constitutionally with framing the bill.

WILL GET AFTER BAKER.

Some of the prominent disclosures that Republicans say they have on the conduct of the war by Secretary of War Baker but intend to discuss Representative Julius Kahn of California, who has been tentatively, probably permanently, made chair of the House Military Affairs Committee.

It will be anything but a sweet song for Postmaster-General Burdett, who is being attacked by the House, for the shambles of the House Postoffice Committee. Stearns was Burdett's most caustic critic throughout the past session and became violently so when Burdett asked the committee to handle a bill that would give the government ownership of the country's telephone and telegraph wires.

sugar bowls have lids why?

Because sugar is one of the things you can't "wash" or "dust" before you use it! Because all the dirt that does sift into sugar stays there and you eat it.

Have you ever stopped to think how much protection the Domino package is to your sugar? It keeps out the flies and every speck of dust. Domino Cane Sugars are weighed, packed and sealed by machine, and come from the refinery to you untouched by hands.

It's the sugar that you know—know for quality, cleanliness and correct weight. In sturdy cartons or strong cotton bags.

CAMPAIGN FOR IRISH FREEDOM
PLANNED

Blood, If Spilled, Will Be on Hands of Wilson as Well as England, Says Golden

New York, March 6.—Plans for a campaign of education to spread the gospel of Irish freedom were announced by Major F. Kinkead of Jersey City, a member of the committee which called upon President Wilson at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Major Kinkead expressed the belief that the result of the campaign will be that the peace conference will be forced to recognize Ireland's demand for self-determination.

"We are going right through the country with this movement," he said. "We feel that all that is needed is a proper presentation of the facts."

"We will reiterate President Wilson's declaration at Mount Vernon, the settlement of every question, whether of territory, of sovereignty, of economic arrangement or of political relationship, must rest upon the basis of the free acceptance of that settlement by the people immediately concerned, and not upon the basis of the material interest or advantage of any other nation by parties."

"In this way we will arouse the people to the realization that Ireland is not a domestic question, but one which all the nations must take into consideration, just as surely as they have discussed settlements for Poland and other subject nationalities."

"We feel that we made a good beginning by laying the problem before President Wilson."

President Wilson was highly denounced and hissed at a mass meeting of the Irish Progressive League in Central Opera House. A resolution was adopted demanding that the President "live up to his professions by insisting on recognition of the Irish republic by the peace conference and that we shall hold him to strict accountability in the event of his failure to do so."

Major Golden, the speaker, who was on the speakers' stand, said: "If blood is to be spilled again in Ireland, that blood must be upon the hands of President Wilson as well as the English government."

ADMITS PASSING
BAD CHECKS AT SPRINGFIELD

J. Arcadius Methot, Former
Manager of Woodland Park
Hotel, Under Arrest

Springfield, March 6.—J. Arcadius Methot, former manager of the Woodland Park Hotel, Auburndale, who is wanted in Newton for disappearing two years ago without paying his bills $1,500 in wages, is under arrest in this city charged with passing worthless checks. An investigation instituted since his arrest, the police say, show that he managed to distribute numerous bad checks before one of his alleged victims got a warrant for his arrest.

Since his arrest, Methot, who is known here as Joseph A. Methot, has proved to be a picturesque character. After admitting his guilt, he told police and court officers stories of his dissuading. He is the owner of a vast tract of timberland in Newfoundland, 1,000 square miles in area, he declared, for which he claims he paid $100,000 cash some time ago. He mortgaged it for $15,000, he claimed, to finance another scheme, and now is looking for a cash purchaser.

—Men's Fur Coats and Men's Fur Lined Coats

The Savings Based on Next Season's Selling Will Average Fully 1/3

All Are New 1919 Styles, Thus Assuring Style Correctness For Next Year

Two Special Reasons Why You Should Buy Your Furs Now:

1st—Persons having approved charge accounts may have their furs delivered at time of purchase if they so desire, the bill for which will not be rendered until Nov. 1. Those taking advantage of this offer will have the opportunity of wearing their furs the remainder of the present fur season.

2nd—Patrons purchasing furs in this sale who do not wish them delivered at once may have them put in cold storage and insured free of charge until November, when the bill is rendered.

All Indications Are That Next Season Fur Prices Will Be Higher

Recently at the St. Louis and New York fur auction sales about fifteen million dollars' worth of raw and dressed skins were sold at prices from 10 to 15% higher than last October's prices. In addition the fur manufacturers have granted a 44-hour week, and also materially increased wages to fur operators.

These figures emphasize the importance of this sale. The savings based on next season's prices average about 1-3; some as much as 1-2. Taking these facts into consideration, now is the opportune time to purchase furs, for higher prices are bound to prevail later.

STEEL MAKERS WILL COOPER TODAY

Price Question to Be Discussed in New York and Washington

The steel conference to be held in New York today will be attended by about 150 leading manufacturers, if all invitations are accepted. It is understood that the question of cooperating with the Federal Industries Board in an effort to adjust prices will be discussed. It is stated that while ready to assist the government, steel magnates are opposed to any disposition in regard to prices. Talk of price reductions has reduced demand for steel products, consumers holding off in the hope of saving money. New orders are being received only at from 10 to 15 per cent. of capacity. Unless there is an increase in new business curtailment of mill operations must continue. It will increase the number of unemployed men, which situation is said to be less satisfactory now than it was a week or two ago.

Belief appears to be general that manufacturers will deal prices in the Pittsburgh district there are many rumors concerning such reduction. One report is that the revision will be made within a fortnight. Another date, the date is between April 1 and 10.

The steel industry is of tremendous importance to this country, and is indicated by its always being bought as a whole. Its importance is indicated by the fact that it is the first question considered by the Federal Conference Board, recently appointed by Secretary Redfield. The board will hold its first meeting on the 10th, and expects to help stabilize steel by fixing prices, of which the situation will buy. It is expected that private manufacturers will follow the Federal lead.

It Is Unfair to Misrepresent
What the League Plan Means

Those who favor the League of Nations in its pending form make light of the criticism that it commits us to join in forcible measures to protect the territory or political independence of an externally assailed member.

Article 10 of the Constitution, which the Senate is asked to ratify, declares that:

The high contracting parties undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all States members of the League. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the Executive Council shall advise upon the means by which the obligation shall be fulfilled.

Here, advocates of ratification tell us, is no definite commitment by the United States. The Executive Council can only advise; it cannot compel. The United States would be as free as formerly to take upon any occasion such steps as might seem in its judgment most fitting to its self interest.

But note, please, that pregnant word "OBLIGATION." An obligation is clearly then to be FULFILLED. The "advice" of the Executive Council relates merely to the MEANS of fulfillment. The obligation is actual and absolute. The "MEANS" by which the obligation shall be fulfilled is subject to the advice of the Executive Council. If there were no compulsion there would be no need to create the separate machinery of this League, when under the old order it was always possible for the diplomats of the several nations to interchange ADVICE.

Those who would now loosely construe Article 10 while wishing to have this nation commit itself to the League principle would, we imagine, become very strict constructionists if, having ratified, we should try to apply their present laxity of construction to the first practical test of our new obligation.

Can you not imagine how all our pro-British Americans or our pro-French Americans would raise a din of denunciation should the first advice of the Executive Council be that we take up arms to aid a British cause or a French cause, and should our Congress, bearing in mind the present assurances that Article 10 is merely advisory, decline to become excited and, instead, wait to discover the pathway of a distinctively pro-American policy?

With one accord they would shriek that we were trying to dodge an obligation.

With one voice they would shout that our national honor was at stake.

They would begin to fire the batteries of foreign propaganda; they would begin to foment a war hysteria, and they would employ all the means in which they have become so skilful to lynch the American in public life who should venture to appeal for a calm weighing of American interests in the light of what is best for the plain American people.

Indeed, the foreign nations concerned might move to compel the United States to comply with its accepted "OBLIGATION" and to carry out the terms of its covenant or take the consequences.

Now, if the purpose in creating a League of Nations is merely to fix a place and a clerical force through which diplomatic advice touching matters of common international interest shall more conveniently be cleared, or even to set apart a group of wise men for the better examination of those problems, then there is evidently no need for an Article 10, pledging by implication, if not expressly, all the nations to a rigid guaranty of the status quo.

We submit that advocates of the pending Constitution of the League of Nations are not dealing fairly with the American people when, for purposes of proselyting, they spread the illusion that the intent or probable effect of the present proposal is advisory and not compulsory.

The clear intent of the League of Nations as outlined in the pending Constitution is to take the United States out of its traditional independence from foreign entanglements and so COMMIT IT TO A PARTNERSHIP in the policing of Europe, Asia and Africa as to entail upon it either the costs of a wholly new departure, the bounds of which no finite mind can now foresee, or the embarrassment of having to withhold its hand at the risk of having its good faith challenged, its action challenged and possibly its acquiescence compelled by force.

With these alternatives before them, the American people are surely not disposed rashly to impose so serious and dangerous an obligation upon this nation.

HAVE THE GOODS—THEN MAKE A FLASH

Are you constantly disappointed because you do not reach your goal? But is your goal along lines of achievement for which you have neither ability nor preparation?

Are you trying to get through on too much of a bluff? You say that others are doing the same in their lines and getting away with it, so why should you not carry on a bluff as well as the next one?

Do you know of a real bluffer who did not sooner or later come to grief?

And when this bluffer came up against a position where it meant stand and deliver the goods, the failure to make good rendered the audacious one practically useless thereafter, didn't it?

Do you want to be caught in this way?

Of course some courage and initiative is needed to carry you through. But courage and initiative must have a foundation.

To hold your own and make a success of it consistently through the year in and year out proposition you have to have something substantial back of you.

Get your foundation first or be ready for the position you have taken to crumble and fall.

TOWN GOSSIP

Suggested C. R. Frost Office.

By K. C. B.

REMINISCING.

AROUND THE wood fire.
IN THE night house.
ON THE night of the day.
WE HAD our turnaway.
I RECALLED.
THAT ONE time.
WHEN I was a boy.
IN MY early teens.
I HAD seen a runaway.
WHICH AS turnaways go.
WAS ENTIRELY successful.
AND RIGHT AWAY.
THERE AROSE within me.
A GREAT desire.
TO WRITE something about it.
AND PUT it in the paper.
WHERE MY father was editor.
AND I wrote about it.
AND PUT it in my pocket.
AND WENT down to the office.
AND ON a counter.
THERE WAS a little tin box.
WHERE I HAD seen minutes.
DEPOSIT THEIR church notices.
AND SUNDAY others.
DROP VARIOUS items
OF LOCAL interest.
AND I waited there.
TILL NO one was looking.
AND THEY extracted.
FROM MY coat pocket.
THE LITERARY child.
OF MY youthful brain.
AND QUICKLY dropped it.
INTO THE box.
AND HURRIED AWAY.
AND THE next morning.
WHEN THE paper came.
I WAS up and waiting.
AND IT WAS there.
IN THE local column.

ON THE back page.

UNDER "LOCALS and Personal."
AND NOT a word.
OF WHAT I had written.
HAD BEEN changed.
AND RIGHT there.
I MADE up my mind.
I'D BECOME a writer.
AND I kept my secret.
TILL THE next morning.
WHEN I read a notice.
SOMETHING like—
"WILL THE person.
"WHO WROTE THE item.
"ABOUT THE runaway.
"ON PORTAGE AVENUE.
"PLEASE CALL at the office."
AND I had an idea.
THEY WERE going to pay me.
AND I grew excited.
AND TOLD my father.
I'D WRITTEN the item.
AND THEN I discovered.
THAT I'D made a mistake.
IN THE name of the store.
THAT THE team had run into.
AND THE STORE'D mentioned.
WAS SORE about it.
AND I changed my mind.
ABOUT BEING a writer.
BUT EVER since then.
I'VE BEEN interested in runaways.
BUT IN my wildest dreams.
I HAD no idea.
I'D EVER be in one.

PLEASE CALL at the office.

AND I had an idea.

THEY WERE going to pay me.

AND I grew excited.

AND TOLD my father.

I'D WRITTEN the item.

AND THEN I discovered.

THAT I'D made a mistake.

IN THE name of the store.

THAT THE team had run into.

AND THE STORE'D mentioned.

WAS SORE about it.

AND I changed my mind.

ABOUT BEING a writer.

BUT EVER since then.

I'VE BEEN interested in runaways.

BUT IN my wildest dreams.

I HAD no idea.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

I'D EVER be in one.

More Truth Than Poetry

DOUGHBOY DITTIES

When the Ship Comes Up the Bay

THERE was Fill up at Chalmers, there was Lucie in Varennes;
An Yvonne who kept the grocery down in Brest;
Winnin' ways they had about 'em—such a jolly bunch o' wrens.

It was hard to pick the one I liked the best.
I was fairly wild about 'em; an' they seemed to fancy me;
It was mighty tough to part with 'em—an' yet
Once the troupph headed westward and was half a mile at sea,
I discovered they was easy to forget.

FOR I'm never going back to sunny France,
As I told 'em all the day we had to part;
We won't never meet again by any chance,
An' I'm not the girl to nurse a broken heart.
I'll be looking for a bunch o' fluffy hair
When the packet runs her nose along the pier,
And I'll trade a million Minis over there
For a single little Sally over here!

CLANCY fell for little Julie, who he met up Soisson way,
So where they had him dain' duty as M. P.

She made her Mrs. Clancy—she's a peachy Jane, they say.
But he's welcome to her twice, for all o' me.

They are some bewitchin' creatures, are them soft-voiced
Madamselles;

They have grabbed a lot o' doughboys with their smiles.
If I'd stayed I might have fallen, like the others, for their spells.

But their witchcraft cannot reach three thousand miles.

SOMEWHERE in the good old U. S. A.
In the future I will have my new address;
I will dream about 'em all, but day by day
I believe I'm goin' to miss 'em less an' less.

For I'll find the girl I left behind somewhere,
I'll be watchin' for her when we hit the pier,
And I'll trade a million Minis over there
For a single little Sally over here!

BEAUTIES TO BATTLE IN THE LAW
COURTS

Tears are dried and black eyes flash as two brunette beauties—Wife No. 4 and Flannery No. 6—prepare to fight for the remnant of Nat Goodwin's fortune.

"THE trouble with me," said Nat Goodwin, a few weeks before his death, "is that I have always liked beautiful women—and they have always trimmed me."

He was once rated as a millionaire, and his great hope, often expressed, was that he could retire from the stage while still in his prime, and enjoy his San Jacinto, Cal., ranch, and other property. But five wives—with expensive divorce suits and big alimony, come high. Edna Goodrich left him nearly broke—Margaret Moreland (No. 2) almost entirely so. Fortune began to smile again when he starred in "Why Marry?" and happiness came again, too, with the budding of Romance No. 6.

In Georgia Gardner, pretty understudy in the company, he declared he had found the one woman who really loved him, since his still lamented first wife, Eliza Weatherbee, who had died Mrs. Goodwin. He said he wished he had a fortune to bestow upon her, but Georgia said money did not matter—she wanted only him. And so when he was nearing death, he left a little note, bequeathing what little was left of his fortune to her. Now Edna Goodrich comes forward with a will made before her divorce from Nat, and wishes to take this little for herself.

Romance isn't always fiction—and it doesn't always come in books. You'll find this engrossing true story in next Sunday's Advertiser and American.

Then there's the fascinating story of how they tested the skill or stupidity of our soldiers, and made of the raw recruits an efficient fighting body of highly trained experts.

How Mamma's shocking experience as the American wife of an heir to the Bavarian throne has failed to warn the young Countess Pauline Pappenheim against "evangelical foreign alliances" is another true romance.

The final installment of "The Black Stone" is another Sunday attraction. You have followed this thrilling romance of George Gibbs—you will of course want to read the last chapter, in which "all ends well."

There's poetry and romance, too, in the beautiful page of poems described by Lady Duff Gordon, the famous "Lionel," and illustrated with photographs from life. "When-in-doubt" poems she calls them—something that's good to know.

Mrs. Christine Frederick has a timely suggestion as to "Curing Spring Fever"—without applying to drug store or doctor for tonic. Not much romance in that, perhaps, but—

"Beating the swords into plowshares" will only be possible when armaments are limited and the League of Nations firmly established. It is an ideal of dream and of strife for — and Howard Chandler Christy has immortalized it in his "Limitation of Armaments" painting which forms the full-color cover to the Magazine Section next Sunday.

All-in next Sunday's Advertiser and American—not to mention the unforgettable Comies!

They have grabbed a lot o' doughboys with their smiles. If I'd stayed I might have fallen, like the others, for their spells.

Strikes Educate Us
Absent Treatment
For Critics, Quick Death
It Would Surprise Beecher
By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

Here is "absent treatment." It makes the "regular physician" a half brother to the Christian Scientist. Two doctors on the transport Sierra, which has just arrived from Bordeaux, were called on the wireless by the British merchantman Pollac, 100 miles away.

The Pollac had a disease puzzling to the doctor. The two doctors consulted on the Sierra and made up a course of treatment. Later they held a consultation with the Powhatan on an influenza outbreak. The ships went their ways in different directions after six doctors all together, had joined in the wireless consultation on the three ships.

A Christian Science practitioner would have sent simply this message: "Tell him that he's got the influenza, since there is no such thing. Let him make his demonstration, drop his nonsense and get well."

Bones prefer the prescription, some prefer the Christian Science. In a world that has accomplished wireless telegraphy, anything less than possible, including absent treatment.

The Reverend Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, who preaches in the pulpit formerly occupied by Henry Ward Beecher, tells the Young Men's Christian Association that he spends his time criticizing Great Britain ought to be tried at midnight and shot at daybreak. Had it not been for the British fleet America would have been invaded.

Maybe so, maybe not. But this statement would interest Henry Ward Beecher. When he was in England making speeches during the Civil War the British treated him roughly, and he gave them critical talks that under Dr. Hillis' view would have caused him to be tried at midnight and shot at sunrise.

On one occasion, when the British were heckling and baiting Beecher at a public meeting, one in the audience asked: "You Americans are such wonderful fighters, so you say. It seems to take you four times to end this war. When will you finish it?"

Beecher replied: "The patient with us. We can't tell you exactly when the war will end. You see, the time we are fighting Americans, whereas before we were only fighting Englishmen, and that was easier."

To the credit of the British, be it said, they had more respect for Henry Ward Beecher after that. Nevertheless, according to his distinguished successor, he should have been tried and shot at sunrise, for he did criticize the British.

Except for inadequate tunnels under the North River, New York is cut off from the rest of the world by a strike of workers on harbor craft. The quarrel of strikers would workmen stand off of boat owners inflates discomfort of millions of human beings.

This should make business men think earnestly about government ownership of transportation facilities. Government ownership with fair pay for fair work, will serve the public better than the strike.

Government ownership, putting a few million men on government payroll, protected by civil service, would give to government stability a highly desirable array of devoted protectors.

The present strike should emphasize and determine the importance of connecting New York's six millions of inhabitants more safely and efficiently with the rest of the United States by putting more tunnels under the river, for automobiles and other hauling, and at least one great bridge over the river.

That sixteen thousand boatmen and their employers should be able to cut off New York City from the rest of the country for an indefinite period is not a situation to be tolerated by intelligent human beings, regardless of the rights or wrongs of either party.

Cotton exchanges in New York and New Orleans are obliged to close, because they don't know enough about the new law concerning contracts for future deliveries of cotton.

This is called "gambling in cotton," and, of course, that is what it is. If a man buys or sells cotton in the next month or next year, he is gambling on the probable price of cotton in the future. So let him tell you that to stop gambling in futures will mean happiness for everybody.

Others will tell you that to stop gambling in futures will mean happiness for everybody. Others will tell you that to stop gambling in futures will mean happiness for everybody.
